

Breast Surgery Position – Mount Saint Joseph Hospital

Providence Health Care is seeking a general surgeon with fellowship training in breast surgical oncology or general surgical oncology for a temporary 1 year, full time position at Mount Saint Joseph Hospital in Vancouver, BC. The successful candidate will join a group practice in breast surgery at Mount Saint Joseph Hospital within the division of general surgery, currently with 7 general surgeon members. Requirements include FRCSC in General Surgery, Canadian or US fellowship training (or equivalent) in breast surgery, eligibility for full licensure with the College of Physicians and Surgeons of BC, and eligibility for Canadian Medical Protective Association coverage (or equivalent).

Elective practice will be primarily breast surgery in all aspects, including benign and malignant disease joining 5 surgeons at the Providence Breast Centre. Elective general surgery (excluding endoscopy) may be considered. Emergency practice will include the full spectrum of acute general surgery to include referrals from the ER and inpatient wards. Access to the operating room and inpatient beds will be allocated similar to the other fulltime surgeons and on-call expectations will be commensurate with operating room elective time.

Preference will be given to candidates with graduate degrees, proven records of research activity and administrative initiatives, and strong references with regards to clinical and scholarly excellence, teaching ability and collegiality.

Providence Breast Centre (PBC) is Vancouver's only breast centre. It serves patients in the Greater Vancouver area and is a referral centre for complex patients throughout British Columbia and Yukon Territory. PBC provides clinical space, nurse navigation and centralized referral pathways for all breast patient referred to our group. Mount Saint Joseph Hospital is part of Providence Health Care and is a teaching facility affiliated with the University of British Columbia.
